AIR FORCE DISCHARGE REVIEW BOARD DECISIONAL RATIONALE

FD2002-0262

GENERAL: The applicant appeals for upgrade of discharge to Honorable and for a change of the reason for discharge to unsatisfactory performance.

The applicant appeared, with counsel, before the Board on 22 May 2003.

The attached brief contains the available pertinent data on the applicant and the factors leading to the discharge.

FINDINGS: Upgrade of discharge and change of reason for discharge are denied.

The Board finds that neither the evidence of record nor that provided by the applicant substantiates an inequity or impropriety which would justify a change of discharge or the reason thereof.

The applicant's issues are listed in the attached brief.

Issue 1. Applicant contends that before she was separated from the Air Force, she was told that if she failed her CDC test, she would be given an honorable discharge. On the other hand, she received a "general under honorable conditions discharge" and the reason stated on her DD Form 214 is "misconduct." The information provided by the applicant and contained in her records was carefully reviewed by the DRB. The misconduct included reporting late to work, reporting to work out of uniform, leaving her place of residence while on quarters, failing to promptly return the shop copy of her CDCs to her supervisor, failing to perform her job properly, and wearing unauthorized hair accounterments. The records indicated the applicant received thirteen forms of administrative/rehabilitative action including seven letters of counseling and three letters of reprimand. The DRB opined that through these administrative actions, the applicant had ample opportunities to change her negative behavior, but apparently chose not to do so. The Board concluded that the misconduct outweighed the otherwise satisfactory performance of this member. The characterization of the discharge received by the applicant was found to be appropriate.

Issue 2. The applicant asserts that had she passed the CDC test, she would not have been discharged, much less receive a "misconduct discharge." Because the Board had no evidence to consider in order to determine the validity of this claim and could not speculate on its relevance, the Board decided this issue against the respondent.

Issue 3. The applicant disputed the reason for her separation—misconduct—and stated that she deserves an honorable discharge. The applicant stated that at no time during the discharge process was she aware that misconduct was a possible reason for her separation. On the other hand, she asserted that the only reason she would have been separated was for failure of her CDC exams. This argument is without merit. The case file is replete with evidence that the respondent knew from the outset of the administrative discharge process that a reason for her proposed separation was misconduct. The notification letter, served on the respondent by her commander on 9 June 1998, accurately states that misconduct is one of the reasons the commander was initiating the involuntary separation action pursuant to AFI 36-3208, Administrative Separation of Airmen. In fact, the notification letter annotates misconduct as the "primary reason" for the involuntary administrative discharge action. On 9 June 1998, the respondent signed a memorandum addressed to her commander in which the respondent acknowledged the receipt of the notification letter and her rights pertaining to the discharge action. On 15 June 1998, after receiving an extension to submit matters in her own behalf, the respondent submitted a four-page letter rebutting the reason for the separation.

During her personal appearance, the respondent admitted, under oath, that although some of the misconduct was "nit-picky," she did deserve the disciplinary actions taken in response to some of the instances of misconduct. The DRB took note of the applicant's duty performance as documented by her performance reports, letters of recommendation, and other information contained in the records. They found the seriousness of the willful misconduct offset any positive aspects of the applicant's duty performance. The Board concluded the discharge was appropriate for misconduct.

Issue 3. The applicant requests that the reason (misconduct) for her discharge be changed to unsatisfactory performance. The applicant concludes that she should not be labeled with "Misconduct." The DRB opined that the primary reason for discharge, misconduct, was appropriate. Although the respondent was also notified that a reason for the involuntary separation action was unsatisfactory duty performance—resulting from her failure of her CDC exams—it was not the primary reason. The Board concluded that even though the respondent unsatisfactorily completed her CDCs, her misconduct had a greater impact on her separation.

CONCLUSIONS: The Board concludes that the discharge was processed in substantial compliance with the applicable regulatory guidance, was within the discretion of the discharge authority, and the applicant was provided full administrative due process.

for upgrade or change of reason for discharge, and thus the applicant's discharge should not be changed.

In view of the foregoing findings, the Board further concludes that there exists no legal or equitable basis Attachment: Examiner's Brief

- ISSUE 2: If I had passed the CDC test, I would NOT have been discharged at all!! Much less, a misconduct discharge.
- ISSUE 3: So I dispute the MISCONDUCT reason of Discharge and believe I deserve the discharge of Honorable that is given to airman who fail the CDC test and are discharged from active duty military.

MEMORANDUM FOR 62 AW/CC

FROM: 62 AW/JA

SUBJECT: Legal Review of AFI 36-3208, Administrative Separation of Airmen

Administrative Discharge - A1C

- 1. On 9 June 1998, 62 OSS/CC initiated this administrative discharge action against A1C for a number the provisions of AFI 36-3208, Administrative Separation of Airmen, Chapter 5, Section E, paragraph 5.26.3, for unsatisfactory duty performance failure to progress in on-the-job training (OJT) and Section H, paragraph 5.49, for minor disciplinary infractions (primary basis). A1C was properly notified of this action and informed of her right to counsel and her right to submit statements. After consulting with counsel, A1C Shoop submitted statements. 62 OSS/CC recommends that A1C preceive a general discharge without probation and rehabilitation.
- 2. FACTS: 62 OSS/CC initiated this discharge action based on the following incidents, which occurred during A1C Shoop's current enlistment, which began on 8 February 1995:
- a. Paragraph 5.26.3 unsatisfactory duty performance failure to progress in on-the-job (OJT) training:
- (1) On or about 25 March 1998, A1C scored a 50 on her 2nd Career Development Course (CE) exam thereby failing to meet the minimum passing score of 65. For this failure, Extension Course Institute (ECI) Air University disenrolled A1C from the Career Development Course, and A1C supervisor, unit training monitor, and commander personally counseled her. In addition, 62 OSS/CC initiated this involuntary discharge action.
- (2) On or about 12 November 1997, A1C scored a 58 on her 1st Career Development Course (CE) exam thereby failing to meet the minimum passing score of 65. For this failure, her supervisor, unit training monitor, and commander personally counseled her. In addition, her unit scheduled her to retake the test.
- (3) On or about 23 October 1996, A1C Course cored a 52 on her 1st Career Development Course (CE) exam thereby failing to meet the minimum passing score of 65. For this failure, Extension Course Institute (ECI) Air University disenrolled A1C from the Career Development Course because the time allotted (12 months from date of enrollment) to complete her CDCs had expired. Her unit later had her CDC enrollment reactivated.

FD2002-026Z

- (2) On or about 13 February 1998, A1C was 60 days delinquent on her AAFES DPP account. For this offense, her unit verbally counseled her.
- (3) On or about 9 January 1998, A1C was late for duty. For this offense, A1C Shoop received a Letter of Reprimand dated 13 January 1998.
- (4) On or about 5 January 1998, A1C failed to return to work after her one-hour lunch break. Specifically, A1C superfect for lunch at 0345 hours and did not return until 0630 hours. For this offense, A1C supervisor verbally counseled her, as documented in a Memo for Record.
- (5) On or about 2 October 1997, A1C was given the day off to prepare for her Career Development Course exam (CE). On or about 3 October 1997, A1C failed to take the CDC test. For this offense, A1C received a Letter of Reprimand dated 8 October 1997.
- (6) On or about 25 August 1997, A1C failed to remain at her place of residence while on quarters. For this offense, A1C free received a Letter of Counseling dated 25 August 1997.
- (7) On or about 24 April 1997, A1C state left for lunch 15 minutes early and returned from lunch 15 minutes late. Specifically, A1C state left for lunch at 0945 hours when her authorized expanded lunch hour started at 1000 hours and she returned from lunch at 1215 hours when her lunch hour ended at 1200 hours. For this offense, A1C state received a Letter of Counseling dated 28 April 1997.
- (8) On or about 28 January 1997, A1C disobeyed an order from her supervisor, in that she failed to return the shop copy of the CDCs to her supervisor after being ordered to do so. For this infraction, A1C distriction and the company 1997.
- (9) On or about 13 December 1996, A1C was derelict in the performance of her duties by using improper lifting practices, failing to perform her job as briefed to her upon her initial assignment to the float section, and her lack of initiative when loading the truck.

- (13) On or about 12 July 1995, A1C wrote a check to AAFES in the amount of $3.39 and thereafter failed to maintain sufficient funds to cover the check upon its presentment. For this offense, the unit took no action.

3. LEGAL ANALYSIS:

- a. The case file is legally sufficient to support the proposed action under AFI 36-3208, Chapter 5, Section E, paragraph 5.26.3, for unsatisfactory duty performance failure in on-the-job training (OJT) and Section H, paragraph 5.49, for minor disciplinary infractions (primary basis).
- b. AFI 36-3208, paragraph 5.26, provides that airmen are subject to discharge for unsatisfactory performance (including failures in on-the-job training) "based on documented failures to meet Air Force standards." AIC failures in her CE exams equate to a failure to meet Air Force standards. Career Development Courses are required training for all airmen and passing the CE exam is a prerequisite for completing upgrade training. Airmen are expected to take the responsibility to perform their assigned duties and complete required training. Despite her unit's efforts to assist her through counselings and improvement opportunities, A1C failure to take the responsibility to dedicate herself to successful completion of her CDCs and thereby failed to meet Air Force training standards. A1C failure to pass a required training program constitutes unsatisfactory performance and a failure in on-the-job training and forms a basis for discharge under AFI 36-3208, paragraph 5.26.3.
- c. Minor disciplinary infractions are violations of nonpunitive regulations or minor offenses under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, and are evidenced by counselings, letters of reprimand, or nonjudicial punishment. A1C behavior, as outlined in paragraph 2, constitutes a pattern of minor disciplinary infractions. When an airman engages in such infractions, discharge under AFI 36-3208, Administrative Separation of Airmen, paragraph 5.49, is appropriate.
- d. Under AFI 36-3208, paragraph 6.44, when the basis of a discharge recommendation consists of two or more reasons, the commander should apply the guidance on service characterization that allows the most latitude. Thus, when a recommendation for discharge is approved for both unsatisfactory duty performance and minor disciplinary infractions, the criteria for characterization of discharge for misconduct should be applied. A general discharge is appropriate because significant negative aspects of A1C conduct outweigh positive aspects of her military record. The range and consistency of infractions demonstrate a disregard for acceptable Air Force standards. A1C conduct is not, however, so egregious that it constitutes a "significant departure" from the conduct expected of airmen, thus warranting an under other than honorable conditions discharge. Likewise, A1C service has not been so meritorious that only an honorable discharge is appropriate.

- e. The member's response (see tab 5):
- 1. A1C the responded primarily to the evidence supporting the primary basis for discharge, minor disciplinary infractions. She did not discuss evidence regarding her CDC failures. In her response, A1C the explains that she was not instructed how to respond to many of the letters she received. She implies that because she did not know about the services offered by the ADC, she did not know how to respond to some of the letters. Because A1C the submitted a response to a letter of counseling in January 1996, she was aware that she could respond and has had the opportunity to ask questions about formatting an effective response.
- 2. In the eighth paragraph of her response, A1C disputes some of the letters that support this discharge action:
- a. In subparagraph a, she responds to a Letter of Reprimand dated 24 April 1998. On 25 April 1998, she acknowledged the LOR and did not attach statements. A1C that the opportunity to respond but chose not to do so at that time.
- b. Subparagraph b supplements her response to a Letter of Reprimand dated 13 January 1998. Her main substantive complaint is that the unit found her reporting late for duty based on the work of another airman, her supervisor. As you know, rarely does an incident produce tangible evidence (such as a video of the event); often commanders base their disciplinary decisions on the reports of an airman's supervisor. Furthermore, her commander reviewed her initial response to the Letter of Reprimand and chose not to withdraw the LOR.
- c. In subparagraphs c and e, A1C especial esponds to Letters of Counseling dated 8 October 1997 and 20 December 1996, respectively. Although both LOCs noted that submitted comments would become part of the action, she chose not to respond and raise these issues at that time.
- d. Her responses in subparagraphs d and f reiterate her original responses to the Letters of Counseling dated 19 December 1996 and 18 January 1996, respectively. Her response in subparagraph f calls the 18 January 1996 LOC "nit picky." Note, however, that discharge packages generally contain all properly administered LOCs and LORs.

Although A1C the seponses to her self-described "adverse letters of harassment" offer her another chance to tell her side of the story, they also demonstrate her unwillingness to be accountable for her actions. As such, the weight and credibility of her responses do not materially affect our recommendation.

3. In addition, because A1O has has not received any Article 15 punishments and has no criminal history, she feels she deserves an honorable discharge. A mere lack of criminal history and Article 15 punishment does not entitle a member to an honorable discharge. Minor disciplinary infractions are just that—they are infractions that do not rise to the level of criminality or merit Article 15 punishment but that still warrant some disciplinary action.

A1C also explains that she intends to pursue a career with the Washington State Patrol and that a general discharge will keep her from doing so. The indirect impact of the type of discharge on her future employment should not be a factor in determining how A1C served in the Air Force.

f. 62 OSS/CC does not recommend an offer of probation and rehabilitation. We concur. A1C has been given several opportunities to correct her behavior, but she continues to fail to show that she can adopt and consistently demonstrate acceptable standards of behavior. Her most recent EPR notes her lack of motivation and professionalism and indicates her need for constant supervision. A1C has been given us every reason to believe that if she were to remain in the Air Force, she would continue her misconduct. A1C has been given and first sergeant have counseled her and agree that it would be in the best interests of the Air Force and A1C has been given as soon as possible.

4. ERRORS AND IRREGULARITIES:

- a. Paragraph 2.b.2 of the Notification Memorandum dated 9 June 1998 indicates that A1C was verbally counseled for delinquency on her DPP account (atch 3). The first sergeant's memorandum, dated 2 March 1998, indicates that the unit accomplished a Memorandum for Record and not verbal counseling as corrective action. A Memorandum for Record is not included for this action. However, it appears that the unit mistakenly marked this box. The body of the letter asked OSS/IN to provide instructions to the member on what she should do, and the comments under "mitigating circumstances" suggest that the member verbally responded. Therefore, it appears to be a clerical error. In addition, the comments state "see attached receipt" and no such receipt is contained in the package. MSgt who signed the memorandum from OSS/CCF on 20 March 98, has since PSC'ed to England. Although the unit took no disciplinary action beyond the alleged verbal counseling, the clerical error and lack of proof of payment does not materially affect the legal sufficiency of this discharge action.
- b. The Letter of Reprimand dated 13 January 1998 (atch 4) does not indicate whether or not the member submitted statements. Because the member did submit a response, this administrative error does not affect the legal sufficiency of this discharge action.
- c. A copy of the member's physical exam must be included in this discharge package prior to final discharge.

5. OPTIONS:

- a. Direct that this action be discontinued and retain A1C. In the United States Air Force.
- b. Direct that A1C be discharged from the United States Air Force with a general discharge, with or without probation and rehabilitation.

FROM: 62 OSS/CC

SUBJECT: Notification Memorandum

1. I am recommending your discharge from the United States Air Force for unsatisfactory duty performance – failure in on-the-job training (OJT) and minor disciplinary infractions. The authority for this action is AFPD 36-32, Military Retirements and Separations, and AFI 36-3208, Administrative Separation of Airmen, paragraphs 5.26.3 and 5.49 (primary basis). If my recommendation is approved, your service will be characterized as honorable or general. I am recommending that your service be characterized as general. I have informed 62 OG/CC of this recommendation for discharge.

For this failure, Extension Course Institute (ECI) Air University disenrolled you from the Career Development Course, and your supervisor, unit training monitor, and I personally counseled you. In addition, I initiated this involuntary discharge action. (atch 1)
- (2) On or about 12 November 1997, you scored a 58 on your 1st Career Development Course (CE) exam thereby failing to meet the minimum passing score of 65. Therefore, we had your CDC enrollment reactivated. (atch 1)
